KeyMacro-compatible file by simply typing the required lines of code. The Program then enables the user to type in the required lines of code. By repeatedly typing in the required lines of code within this file, an entire range of Macro functions becomes available. It is a brilliant way of extending your keyboard with extra functions and commands." Reverse-GST Calculator: The GSTcalc reverse calculation application enables users to enter the original price plus the reverse calculated amount of GST component. It calculates the raw amount of GST component that was lost when the tax inclusive price was entered. This GSTcalc program is very similar to the first GSTcalc program. The only difference is that the original price must be entered before the GST component can be calculated. This reverse calculation process is useful to small businesses who wish to calculate the GST component of purchases for tax credit claims. ## GSTcalc [April-2022]

Simplicity comes at a price - it is not an exacting calculator. This means that the user must take responsibility for entering the correct figures for accuracy and does not always produce the correct result. Use the Calculate button to calculate the GST component of the price. Enter a price in the 'Price in' box and click calculate. The calculator will display the price and GST component together. The GST component will be shown in '%'. Enter the GST component into the 'GST component' box to calculate the final inclusive price. Enter a price in the 'Price in' box and click calculate. The calculator will display the price and GST component together. The GST component will be shown in '%'. Enter the GST component into the 'GST component' box to calculate the final inclusive price. If the 'Inclusive price' box is not highlighted you must enter a price before clicking calculate. Pricing: The price and GST component will be displayed in the box on the left. The price inclusive of GST will be displayed in the box on the right. The GST component will be shown in '%'. Not applicable if the 'Inclusive price' box is not highlighted.
